

All of us at Dragonman's Shooting Range hold safety as our number one priority. We want to ensure the safety of everyone and offer a range everyone feels safe and comfortable at.

Here's a list of rules we ask all customers using the range to follow to maintain an enjoyable experience for everyone.

4 UNIVERSAL SAFETY RULES

- All firearms are considered loaded at all times
- Always point firearms in a safe direction (downrange, the ground, upward, etc.), until on target and ready to fire
- Always keep your trigger finger straight along the frame until on target and ready to fire
- Always know your target and what is behind it

GENERAL RANGE RULES

- Ear and eye protection must be worn at all times.
- All firearms must be cased before entering the range.
- When shooting, everyone must stay behind the shooting bay or tables.
- Do not come in front of shooting tables or any firearm muzzle while range is hot.
- Every effort should be made for rounds to impact the back stop.
- As a courtesy to the next shooter, be mindful of where casings eject and land.
- You may pick up your own brass. All others that are left behind are now facility property.
- All muzzles must be pointed forward at all times even when range is cold.
- During a cease fire, all slides, bolts or charging handles must be locked open, magazines ejected from firearms, and chambers facing up until RSO calls the range hot.
- Those packing up to leave can only do so when range is hot.
- Firearm Instructors are prohibited from instructing on Dragonman's Shooting Range, unless they provide their active status credentials and personal liability insurance to be on file and make an appointment.
- Failure to follow these instructions gives Dragonman's the right to remove individuals from the premises

FIREARM AND AMMUNITION HANDLING

- Keep the muzzle pointed downrange at all times
- During cease fire, absolutely no handling of firearms
- During cease fire, remain back from the tables to reassure RSO's and others no one is potentially handling firearms while bystanders are down range changing targets
